Statement by

H.E. Ambassador Dr. Alireza KAZEMI ABADI

Permanent Representative of the Islamic Republic of Iran to the OPCW

at the Ninety-Ninth Session of the Executive Council

8-11 March, 2022

In the Name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful

Madam Chairperson,

At the outset, allow me to congratulate you on your assumption as the Chair of the Ninety-ninth Session of the Executive Council and assure you of my delegation's full support and cooperation in discharging your duties. I would also like to thank the Director-General, H.E. Ambassador Fernando Arias, for his comprehensive report delivered in this Session.

The Islamic Republic of Iran associates itself with the statement delivered by H.E. Ambassador Fikrat Akhundov, the Permanent Representative of the Republic of Azerbaijan to the OPCW on behalf of the States Parties of the Non-Aligned Movement and China.

Madam Chairperson,

The Chemical Weapons Convention is a true disarmament treaty which simultaneously considers the promotion of peaceful international cooperation in the field of chemical science and technology.

But, nevertheless, we still have a long road ahead to reach the objects and purposes of the Convention and these days we are witnessing the ever increasing challenges, which require collective efforts and participation of all State Parties to tackle those problems. In this regard, the noble goals of the Convention shall not be sacrificed due to the short-sighted geopolitical ambitions of a few State Parties, being confident of having enough votes in favor. It is unfortunate that during the past years a lot of damage has been done to the credibility and integrity of the Convention and Organization. The credibility and reputation of the Organization must be upheld at all costs.

Madam Chairperson,

The destruction of chemical weapons and universality of the Chemical Weapons Convention are two main elements of the chemical disarmament and are essential to achieve the objects and purposes of the Convention, as well as, enhancement of peace and security of the States Parties. Nevertheless, the full destruction of the chemical weapons stockpiles as one of the fundamental pillars of the Convention has not yet been completed. The Islamic Republic of Iran remains seriously concerned that the sole possessor State Party has not complied with this fundamental obligation of the Convention. This major possessor State Party shall comply with its obligations under the convention, and accelerate its efforts, by making use of all relevant technologies and methods, to complete the destruction of its chemical weapons stockpiles in the shortest possible time and prior to the scheduled timeline.

Madam Chairperson,

It is worth mentioning that Syria, after Joining the CWC in 2013, prepared its initial declaration and submitted it within days, which is commendable and unprecedented. Syria declared its entire chemical stockpiles and production facilities that were destroyed with international participation and close oversight of the OPCW, under very difficult and complicated conditions that Syria was facing with.

The Syrian Arab Republic in spite of its difficult security situation has shown its commitment to meet its obligations in a cooperative and transparent manner. Nevertheless, in the last couple of years, some States Parties, made tremendous politically motivated efforts to manipulate the organization to adopt unjustified decisions against the Syrian Arab Republic, which enabled further the opposition groups to continue their violence and terrorist acts against the government and innocent people of the Syrian Arab Republic. In the same vein, regrettably, the decision adopted at the Twenty-Fifth Session of the Conference of the States Parties, suspended certain rights and privileges of the Syrian Arab Republic under the Convention.

In our view, the decision, with only 87 votes in favor, is an obstacle to the Syrian chemical dossier and not an instrument to resolve it. My delegation considers the decision of the Twenty-Fifth Session of the Conference as a dangerous precedent that further complicates the situation.

Madam Chairperson,

The Islamic Republic of Iran unequivocally supports the continuation of the cooperation between the Syrian Arab Republic and the OPCW within a mutually agreed framework of collaboration, and also firmly believes that cooperation and dialogue have proven to be the best mechanisms to resolve the remaining technical issues. The technical issues need to be resolved through cooperation and dialogue, and avoiding political pressure, which has proven time and again to be a failed strategy and would jeopardize the whole process, aimed at addressing outstanding issues.

We are also convinced that the reports and activities of the Fact-Finding Missions (FFMs) in Syria should be of technical nature, depoliticized, based on valid information and reliable sources, and carried out on the basis of impartiality and professionalism.

Moreover, my delegation is of the view that the current approach of the Organization is not consistent fully with the relevant provisions of the convention. Adoption of non-consensual and politically-motivated decisions; unnecessarily broadening of the Technical Secretariat mandate; involving the Organization in tasks which are not defined as its mandate in accordance with the Convention and critical working methods, results, and reports of the missions of the OPCW are just some few examples which have jeopardized the credibility of the Organization and created a growing gap among the States Parties.

Madam Chairperson,

The Convention assures the States Parties that their economic and technological development for peaceful purposes would not be hampered by implementing the obligations under the Convention. This assurance is of utmost importance, since international cooperation in chemical trade and technology for peaceful purposes is a very compelling incentive for accession. It further encourages the States Parties, especially the developing countries, to stay on board and meet their obligations. Therefore, failure to fulfill this assurance through removing impediments to the economic and technological development of the States Parties would irreparably impair the integrity and relevance of the Convention.

Article XI, as it stands, establishes a general principle on how the States Parties should frame their national policies in the field of chemical cooperation and activities, and how the Organization should implement verification procedures. Despite this clarity, there are still some national tendencies as well as certain export control regimes, which violate and undermine the letter and spirit of Article XI. In this context, the Islamic Republic of Iran firmly believes that the Director-General of the organization shall use all means, capacities, and powers for the full, effective and non-discriminatory implementation of the provisions of Article XI, which is an essential element in the realization of the object and purposes of the Convention.

Madam Chairperson,

Due to its humanitarian nature, the International Support Network for Victims of Chemical Weapons is of high significance and the States Parties and the Technical Secretariat should practically and substantially take necessary actions when they need to do so, to ensure that this humanitarian obligation is rightly met. At present, the necessary support extended to this Network is not correspondent to its long-term goals.

It is also noteworthy to underline that more than tens of thousands of victims of chemical weapons in the Islamic Republic of Iran, who are now under unlawful unilateral sanctions, are in urgent need of specific medicament and treatment. We strongly reject imposing discriminatory restrictions and particularly unilateral sanctions against the Member States of this Organization, which directly affects the health and medications of the victims of chemical weapons, as well as the development of developing countries in the field of chemical activities for peaceful purposes. We now require a tangible measure to be taken by the Organization to alleviate the suffering of the victims of chemical weapons. In this context, the Islamic Republic of Iran, along with the other members of the NAM CWC State Parties and China requests the OPCW TS to explore mechanisms including cooperation with the WHO to contribute in assisting the victims of chemical weapons.

It also should pay attention that the systematic unilateral sanctions have many directly or indirectly, unavoidable impacts upon some States Parties that make it difficult for them to meet all their obligations under the Convention. One of the unavoidable examples is the negative impact on the payment of the assessed contributions of the concerned States Parties which seems to be very important for the Organization.

Madam Chairperson,

As the Fifth Review Conference of the Chemical Weapons Convention approaches, the Islamic Republic of Iran hopes that the OPCW will return to its previous successful path with collective wisdom. To this end, all efforts should be made to avoid politicization and polarization within the Organization and pave the way to mutual understanding and cooperation. The OPCW as a professional and technical organization should maintain impartiality and professionalism to perform its functions in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, and remain vigilant against any abuse of rights and powers under the Convention.

Madam Chairperson,

In conclusion and with regard to the recent extensive relaxation of the Covid-19 rules in the host country and elsewhere, my delegation strongly believes that the normal meeting procedures in the Organization could and should be restored to enable all delegations to fully participate in the deliberations. We expect that the next EC meeting to be held in normal format and arrangements if the Covid-19 situation remains stable as it is now.

I request that this statement be posted as an official document on the public website and the Catalyst portal of the OPCW.

Thank You
