GERMANY

Curriculum vitae of the principal nominee

Mr Norbert Hauser was appointed Vice-President² of the German Supreme Audit Institution (Bundesrechnungshof) in 2002. He obtained his university degree in Law from the University of Bonn in 1979. From 1979 to 1981, Mr Hauser was the Federal Managing Director of the Medium-Sized Businesses Association, and was a practising lawyer from 1981 to 2002. From 1998 to 2002, he was a member of the German Federal Parliament and served as a member of various government committees such as the Public Accounts Committee, the Education and Research Committee, and the Investigations Committee on Donations to Political Parties.

Mr Hauser was appointed External Auditor of the UNIDO, and his appointment ended on 30 June 2002. Subsequently, on 1 July 2004, he took over the mandate as External Auditor of the IAEA.

Details of the approach the nominee would take to auditing the OPCW's annual financial statements and administrative activities

Proposed scope of audits

- a) The financial statements of the OPCW (comprising the regular budget, special accounts, and trust funds) and the Provident Fund of the OPCW will be audited in accordance with Article 13 of the OPCW's Financial Regulations and the terms of reference governing external audit.
- b) The audit will include an evaluation of the appropriateness of the accounting policies used by the OPCW and of the reasonableness of the accounting estimates and disclosures contained in its financial statements.

- d) Management and value-for-money examinations will be included in the annual audits of the OPCW's financial statements.

Proposed audit approach and methods

Financial audit

The primary aim of the financial audit will be to assess whether financial statements fairly present the position at the end of a financial period, and whether the statements have been prepared in accordance with the relevant accounting guidelines and policies, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding financial period.

The financial audit will be based on analytical audit procedures. This includes detailed scrutiny of the financial statements, an examination of the OPCW's system of internal controls, and sample testing of transactions and vouchers.

The financial audit is normally supported by commercial audit software called "WinIDEA", which generates financial statements from the general ledger. If the software produces the same results as the OPCW's finance system, savings will be made.

Performance audit

A performance audit covering management and value-for-money examinations will be conducted. Areas of high financial impact and high risk for the OPCW will be identified. Recommendations will be made on issues that affect the OPCW's performance, such as the accuracy of information, operational effectiveness and efficiency, and organisational management. The performance audit will cover the whole range of the OPCW's activities. To make the audit as efficient as possible, the support of Auditors-General of States Parties would be requested should special examinations in the fields of operations be necessary.

The overall ratio between performance and financial audit will be about half and half. Accordingly, half of the audit team has a financial, the other half an economics, background.

Risk assessment

The strengths and weaknesses of controls within the OPCW's financial systems would be assessed in order to determine the likelihood that material error would occur. The results of the assessment would help to determine the level of audit evidence needed to support the audit opinion, to concentrate efforts on high-risk areas, and to improve the cost-effectiveness of audit testing.

Professional standards to be applied to audits

The audit will be carried out in accordance with internationally accepted audit standards, especially those of the Panel of External Auditors of the UN, which were tailored to the special circumstances of UN organisations. Those are based on the INTOSAI standards, with reference to the standards of the International Federation of Accountants. For financial audit, the UN System Accounting Standards adopted by the Panel of External Auditors of the UN will be applied.

Proposed audit fees and estimated total number of audit days

The following table maintains travel and subsistence costs at prices for 2006 for ease of comparison.

Year	Audit Days	Audit Fee	Travel and Subsistence Costs	Total Costs

NEPAL

Curriculum vitae of the principal nominee

Mr Gehendra Nath Adhikary was appointed Auditor-General of Nepal on 22 August 2003. He has experience in the field of audit with the Government of Nepal starting in 1968, mostly with the Office of the Auditor-General.

Mr Adhikary retired from the Office of the Auditor-General where he had held the post of Assistant Auditor-General in 1992. He then worked as Financial Comptroller-General of Nepal from 1992 to 1994. From 1996 to 2002 he was a Member Secretary of the Irregularities Clearance Committee, which was chaired by a member of the Public Accounts Committee of the House of Representatives (Parliament).

Details of the approach the nominee would take to auditing the OPCW's annual financial statements and administrative activities

Proposed scope of audits

The audit will aim to express an opinion on the financial statements of the OPCW and its special accounts, the Provident Fund, and trust funds, as to whether they are presented fairly in all material respects.

The audit will include an analysis of the appropriateness of the accounting policies used by the OPCW and the reasonableness of the accounting estimates and disclosures contained in its financial statements, and its performance of its major activities, based on performance audits. The audit observation will be issued based on a performance-based, long-form report on the processes and performance of the OPCW.

Proposed audit approach and methods

Planning

The planning of the audit activity will be done with a two-tier system. They are (a) strategic planning and (b) detailed planning.

At the strategic planning stage, an evaluation of the risks involved in various components of the financial statements of the OPCW will be conducted so that the business of the OPCW can be understood and so that a determination can be made about what specific areas are to be covered, and to what extent, at the time of the subsequent detailed planning. The risk evaluation will consist of three kinds of risk: inherent risk, control risk, and detection-audit risk.

Subsequently, the detailed planning and preparation of the audit programme involves a study of various activities of the OPCW, system testing, and sampling. During this stage, an analysis of the control environment and control procedures will be made. At the end of the detailed-planning stage, an audit programme will outline step-by-step guidelines for field auditors to perform and conclude audit activities in relation to various components of the OPCW's financial statements.

Field activity

In line with the audit programme, various tests will be performed, such as compliance tests with respect to systems and procedures, internal-control mechanisms, and rules and policies of the OPCW, as well as substantive checks of transactions based on documents, books, and records. During checks of these kinds, a performance evaluation of the OPCW's activities will be conducted to ascertain whether they are performed in such a way as to achieve the preset indicators.

Programmatic review

The audit will include an assessment of the use of the OPCW's funds to perform activities, based on value-for-money audit procedures, including the physical verification of fixed assets, cash, and inventories, and actual observation of programme activities carried out by the OPCW.

Reporting

A draft report will be issued for comments by the OPCW's management. A meeting will be conducted to dispose of issues in the draft report on the basis of information made available and clarifications offered. The preliminary report will include observations and recommendations in respect of weakness in internal controls, of compliance with policies, rules, and regulations, and of the performance achievement of the OPCW.

The External Auditor's report and opinion on the financial statements will be accompanied by a long-form report with management comments.

Professional standards to be applied to audits

The audit will be based on INTOSAI auditing standards.

Proposed audit fees and estimated total number of audit days

The following table maintains travel and subsistence costs at prices for 2006 for ease of comparison.

Details of the approach the nominee would take to auditing the OPCW's annual financial statements and administrative activities

The Auditor-General will determine the most suitable audit approach for the value-for-money audit. Generally, the approach will include:

- testing the validity of key controls, systems, and operations;
